

If I understand correctly, the proposal to be considered involves increasing the concentration level of media ownership. This is precisely the wrong thing to do. You should do exactly the opposite and REDUCE the level of concentration.

That phrase "If I understand correctly" is important. At this point, nobody understands correctly what you're about to consider, because the actual proposal has not been made public. I suspect that this is deliberate; you don't want the public to know what you're up to until it's all done.

Thanks lot, guys.
